Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133).
- Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

TITLE

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed. The claims are directed to methods, computer program products, and a computing device, whereas, in contrast, the present title only cites image analysis which is a method.

VAGUENESS AND INDEFINITENESS

Claims 1-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1, part (b), provides quantitative representations of phenotypes. The comparison to a qualitative representation of a parent strain in part (c) is therefore vague and indefinite as to what is meant by comparing apparently different representation types. Independent claims 16 and 31 also contain this unclarity. Claims dependent from claims 1 or 16 are also vague and indefinite due to their dependence. Clarification via clearer claim wording is requested.

PRIOR ART

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-3, 7, 10-12, 14-18, 22, 25-27, and 29-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) and (e)(2) as being clearly anticipated by Kamentsky et al. (P/N 5,427,910).

Kamentsky et al. discloses the imaging of cells with special emphasis on chromosomes therein as summarized in the abstract. These images are phenotypes as they are visual representations of the cells being imaged. Mutant cell types are imaged as disclosed in column 9, line 64, through column 19, line 24, which discloses the genetically modified cell strains as instantly claimed. Quantitative imaging to produce quantitative representations of the imaged cells is disclosed in column 7, lines 35-49, and column 12, lines 3-51, which also disclose the computer programming and computer device limitations as instantly claimed. Various algorithms are applied to the signals in order to correct for background and generate distance parameters as disclosed in column 12, lines 45-51, as also instantly claimed. Comparison with genetically similar regarding chromosome number which is an embodiment of instant claim 1 is disclosed in column 15, lines 4-9, regarding normal vs. Down's Syndrome individuals. The FISH technique as disclosed in column 9, lines 64-65, is usable for the detection of a variety of chromosomal abnormalities such as rearrangements, translocations, deletions, and even point mutations as summarized in column 1, line 25, through column 2, lines 51, as also claimed in instant claims 2-3.

No claim is allowed.
